Cross-Border Payment Requirement

Intermediary banks are often used when a payment is made in a currency that is different from the local currency. When making a payment through an intermediary bank, their SWIFT BIC must be included.

Key Terms

International Bank Account Number (IBAN)

The International Bank Account Number, IBAN, is an internationally agreed standard to identify an individual's account at a financial institution. IBANs should be included for all SEPA payments. SWIFT maintains an IBAN registry (<https://www.swift.com/swift-resource/9606/download>) that provides details on the IBAN structure. The structure consists of a two-letter ISO country code, followed by two check digits and up to 30 alphanumeric characters for the Basic Bank Account Number (BBAN).

Routing Codes

Some countries require the inclusion of national routing codes to facilitate routing within the country's payment systems. Examples of countries with routing codes are Australia and Canada.

SWIFT BIC

SWIFT BIC is a bank identifier code for members of the SWIFT network. Please note: If a branch BIC is not known, the full name and address should be used.

Country Requirements/Restrictions

Currency and Clearing Information: Canada has well-developed high-value and low-value electronic payment systems.

Account Restrictions: Residents and non-residents can hold both domestic and foreign currency accounts. Most Canadian banks offer accounts in USD.

Canada's "Proceeds of Crime (Money Laundering) and Terrorist Financing Act" and related regulations impose an obligation on all Canadian financial institutions, including J.P. Morgan, to obtain certain information for wire payments transmitted in a SWIFT 103/103+ format and SWIFT MT101s that result in the SWIFT MT103 format. In order to comply with these regulatory requirements, J.P. Morgan will require complete order party/beneficiary information to be included in any wire payments that are sent or received through your accounts with us in Canada.

Complete order party/beneficiary information includes: full account name, full account number, full beneficiary bank name, the SWIFT BIC code, and full physical address information. A full physical address must include: street number, street name, city or town, state or province where applicable, and country, preferably in the 2-character ISO format.

In circumstances where a street number is not assigned to a physical location, a description of the location, such as a building and street name, may be acceptable. A P.O. Box is not acceptable without a full physical address. State or province is also required for all U.S. and Canada addresses and for other countries, where applicable. Some Canadian banks also require the Canadian Clearing Code to avoid delays in processing.

Canada

Continued

The ideal size of the mandatory fields for ordering party/beneficiary full account name is 35 characters. For the mandatory ordering party/beneficiary address, full physical address components should fit into the rest of the 3 lines with 35 characters in each line. Where the beneficiary name exceeds one line, the full beneficiary name and full address should fit in 4 lines. The address information should not overflow into other fields to avoid delays or rejection.

Financial institutions may reject or delay your wires if the required information is not provided or address information does not include a full physical address in the mandatory fields.

Payment Formatting Rules for CAD

Ordering Customer (SWIFT MT103/MT101 F50): For MT103 wire payments debiting a non-FCB¹ client account, the JPMorgan wire engine will enhance the account name and address from account records. Use of initials can delay receipt of funds by the beneficiary.

Beneficiary Customer (SWIFT MT103 or MT101 resulting in a SWIFT MT103 F59): For all transactions in and out of Canada, including those paid through an intermediary bank, include account number, full name (no initials), full physical address, and telephone number of the beneficiary customer. It is recommended by JPMorgan that the bank's SWIFT BIC is provided, and, where applicable, the Canadian Clearing Code is provided for CAD payments. Where the SWIFT BIC is not provided, the wire payment may fall into repair.

It is recommended by Payments Canada that the Canadian Clearing Code or routing code be used for payments denominated in CAD. The 9-digit routing number is made up of the Direct Payment Routing Number (4 digits) and the Branch Transit Number (5 digits). The structure is //CC followed by nine digits. Example: //CC123412345.

Where applicable, the beneficiary bank address and/or transit number identifies which internal branch account the main bank should direct the funds to.

SWIFT BIC is 8 or 11 alphanumeric characters: xxxxCAxx or xxxxCAxxxx.

Wire receipts for credit to a Canadian corporate account need to be received by JPMorgan Toronto in the swift MT103 format due to Canadian regulatory reporting obligations. If they are received in the MT202 format for credit to a corporate-owned account, the wire receipt in the MT202 format will be rejected and will have to be resent by the counterparty in the SWIFT MT103 format.

CNY - Chinese Yuan/Renminbi

Overview

Information provided by the Beneficiary: Remitter should obtain all required bank information from the Beneficiary (e.g. SWIFT BIC, account number, and beneficiary bank address).

Central Bank: For additional information, please refer to www.pbc.gov.cn.

Country Requirements/Restrictions (On-Shore CNY)

Payment Restrictions: This is a restricted currency. Restricted currency payments must include all required information, or they will be canceled.

Beneficiary must have been activated in RCPMIS, the central bank reporting system, by its local bank before it can conduct any CNY cross-border transaction for the first time.

For corporations, payments can be for merchandise, service trade, other current account items (i.e., operating expenses) and approved capital activities.

Account Restrictions: Non-resident companies require approval from the People's Bank of China (PBOC) for the opening of CNY settlement account in China.

Additional Documentation: Supporting documents are not required for outgoing payments if the payment bank allows document simplification. Local regulatory reporting applies to all cross-border payments.

If requested, the beneficiary must provide the local bank with supporting documentation to validate the underlying transaction and receive credit into the account.

Country Requirements/Restrictions (Off-Shore CNY)

Currency & Clearing Information: The official ISO currency code for payments is CNY. It is used as the official code to denominate payments and accounts. CNH is the informal currency term used in the off-shore markets, and denotes the foreign exchange rate for the renminbi traded in the off-shore markets.

Hong Kong is by far the largest renminbi off-shore market due to its early participation in the renminbi international trade settlement scheme and the development of a domestic RMB clearing system (CHATS) where the Bank of China (Hong Kong) is the settlement institution.

Payment Restrictions: Since the liberalization of the currency, the renminbi can be used globally as a trade settlement currency in off-shore jurisdictions (outside mainland China).

China

Continued

Like the other off-shore markets in New York, Singapore, Tokyo, and London, no specific regulatory restrictions are imposed on payment initiation and FX in CNH. However, payments involving FX for CNY rate (the on-shore renminbi rate) are subject to restrictions.

Only merchandise trades with China to be settled within three months are eligible to contract the CNY rate.

Receipt of cross-border CNY remittance to personal accounts in China is not supported.

Account Restrictions: Like the other off-shore markets in New York, Singapore, Tokyo, and London, there are no specific regulatory restrictions imposed on account opening.

Additional Documentation: Supporting documentation may be requested from the beneficiary to substantiate an FX trade.

Foreign Currency Payment into Mainland China Foreign Currency Current & Capital Accounts

Foreign currency accounts in China are purpose based. Current and capital accounts are the most common on-shore foreign currency accounts.

Current accounts are for normal pay/receive activities. Capital accounts are reserved for capital injection.

Capital account opening can be done based on one-off registration with local regulator. Balance limit is capped at the amount of the approved investment. FX from renminbi to another foreign currency must be supported by documentation detailing the nature/purpose of the exchange.

Foreign currency receipts of any amount are subject to explanation on nature/purpose of payment.

Payment Formatting Rules for CNY

If SWIFT BIC is not available or the ordering customer is sending local currency within China, include the full name and address of the beneficiary bank.

Sender to Receiver Information (SWIFT MT103 F72): A purpose of payment code is mandatory and must be included on its own line in F72 for cross-border China-bound CNY payments. The format for the nine-digit BIK and twenty-digit account number should read: /RUXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX.

If there is an intermediary bank in SWIFT MT103 F56A, make sure F57A includes the 20 digit account number of the beneficiary bank as well as the SWIFT BIC.

SWIFT BIC is 8 or 11 alphanumeric characters: xxxRUxx or xxxRUxxxxx.

There should be no spaces, dashes, dots, colons or other characters between the «VO» and digits. The VO Code may be placed in any line of field 72 of MT202's or field 70 of MT103's. TWD – New Taiwan Dollar

Overview

Information provided by the Beneficiary: Remitter should obtain all required bank information from the Beneficiary (e.g. SWIFT BIC, account number, and beneficiary bank address).

Central Bank: For additional information, please refer to www.cbc.gov.tw.

Country Requirements/Restrictions

Payment Restrictions: Taiwan FX markets are regulated. TWD can only be converted in-country.

Non-resident entities must be approved by qualified foreign institutional investors (QFII) to access the onshore market without the special regulatory approval. Non-resident entities are not allowed to hold TWD.

USD (or other available foreign currencies) can be converted in-country for local delivery, but FX documentation and bank regulatory reporting is required.

For individual residents, restrictions exist for sales and purchase of foreign currency against TWD. Maximum cumulative sales or purchases per year is USD 5,000,000 equivalent in gross unless specifically authorized other direct capital investments where there is no limit.

For commercial and individual non-residents, limits are defined in the rules regarding foreign institutional investors or other legislation for foreign exchange against TWD movement in and out. For foreign exchange against TWD movements for non-securities investment purposes, TWD transactions are not allowed.

For commercial residents, there are no exchange limits for sales or purchases of foreign currency against TWD relating to trade products (import/export proceeds) or labor. For funds transfers and direct capital investments, the maximum cumulative sale or purchase of foreign currency per year for legal entity is USD 50,000,000 equivalent (except for specifically authorized direct capital investments, where there is no limit).

In addition to transaction level thresholds, there is a TWD FX maximum limit of USD 50 million (equivalent) per annum for corporations. Items exempt from this limit are payments with special approval from the government (e.g. capital injection etc). For FX conversion against TWD equal or exceeding USD20,000,000, banks in Taiwan need to provide prior notice to Central Bank and seek for verbal guidance from Central Bank to proceed for TWD FX payments. To comply with Central Bank's verbal guidance, onshore and offshore remitters should split TWD FX payment when such payment is equal or exceeding USD20,000,000.

Taiwan

Additional Documentation: For TWD FX inward remittance, offshore remitters are not required to provide reason for payment or purpose code. However, the beneficiary must complete remittance declaration forms and provide supporting documentation (if applicable) to explain the reason for payment. On average, for TWD FX inward remittance to JPM Taipei Branch clients, the documentation process may take 2-3 days to complete. For TWD FX inward remittance to non-JPM Taipei Branch clients, incoming payments should always be a fixed TWD amount so that the payment can align to any required supporting documentation. The documentation process may take 10-15 days to complete subject to processing time from beneficiary bank.

No FX against TWD transactions can be executed until FX reporting information/documentation is in place. The beneficiary must fill out the required documentation with their local bank by value date to receive credit into the account. If documents are not filled out, the exact payment amount and value date cannot be guaranteed. For tax payments, supporting document (i.e. tax bill) from offshore remitter is an acceptable alternative document.

FX conversion against TWD amounts exceeding USD 1,000,000 (equivalent) requires a transaction declaration form and additional supporting documents. For inward remittance to non-JPM Taipei Branch clients, in addition to transaction declaration form and additional supporting documents, Inward Remittance Form is also required from beneficiaries.

FX conversion against TWD amounts equal or exceeding TWD 500,000 and below USD 1,000,000 (equivalent) require a transaction declaration form. For inward remittance to non-JPM Taipei Branch clients, in addition to transaction declaration form, Inward Remittance Form is also required from beneficiaries. FX conversion against TWD amounts below TWD 500,000 require beneficiary to advise on nature of transaction. No declaration form is required. For inward remittance to non-JPM Taipei Branch clients, Inward Remittance Form is required.

Payment Formatting Rules for TWD

Reason for Payment (SWIFT MT103 F70): Required for TWD FX or foreign-currency payments from Taiwan accounts. Payments from offshore remitters do not require reason for payment or purpose code as this will be collected from Beneficiary Bank who contacts the Beneficiary to provide. Provide a reason for the payment (rent, salary, medical expenses, office expenses, etc.).

This field is required for FX conversion against TWD amounts below TWD 500,000.
